COAL IS UNTOUCHED AMONG RESOURCES OF THE STATE

State Bureau of Mines is Authority for Statement That Lack of Interest Isn't Because Coal Deposits "Aren't"

The matter of coal as an economic resource of the state of Arizona has received little more than passing interest, but it is a subject that is worthy of serious consideration. With the vast production of metals forming the basis of the mineral output, the addition of coal as a resource has not been considered of sufficient importance to warrant any extensive development, or indeed any thorough prospecting of the coal region contained in the state. Consequently it is not known with any degree of accuracy just what the possibilities are, but it is known that there are coal deposits of considerable value and extent in at least three parts of the state.

That these deposits existed has been known for a number of years, but their exploitation has not been steady at the close, was $\frac{3}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ cent down with July at \$1.16 $\frac{1}{2}$ and September, \$1.16 $\frac{1}{2}$. Corn finished $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ up; oats unchanged to $\frac{1}{4}$ cent off and provisions varying from the same as yesterday's finish to a decline of 10 cents.

Peace talk showed its influence in the main throughout the evident restraint put upon buyers. Bears in wheat were disposed to emphasize the opinion that the damage from Hessian fly had about reached the maximum for this season.

Sales of 700,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat to Holland did not seem to arouse the slightest enthusiasm on the bull side.

Corn developed firmness owing to the fact that country offerings were light.

Oats were steadied by export sales of 250,000 bushels at the seaboard. Provisions averaged lower on account of sharp down turn in the value of hogs. Railways at times were prompted by rumors of peace and by assertions that 1,500,000 pounds of lard had been disposed of for Belgian relief.

undertaken for several reasons—the growth of the country has not been along manufacturing lines where a cheap source of fuel was a necessity; the proximity of the Gallup fields of New Mexico and the ease with which it could be secured, has made the price low enough to satisfy the demands; the isolation of the coal district is such as to make development very expensive. In the face of these reasons there is little likelihood of any further activity for a number of years to come, but with increased population, increased manufacturing and increased demand for power, these neglected portions of Arizona's mineral resources may be a source of great wealth. There are two ways in which this is most likely to come about; one through the demands of the copper smelters for fuel and through the demand of the industries for power.

Bulletin No. 17, entitled "Coal in Arizona," by A. C. Ruben, has created considerable interest, owing to the fact that many people did not have any idea of the coal deposits of the state. This may be obtained by writing Charles F. Willis, director, Arizona State Bureau of Mines, Tucson, Arizona.

SURVEY BOARD GETS TO WORK

Board Will Know How Much Water Supply it Has When it Admits Extra Acreage Into Full Participation of Benefits

Safety first principles will guide the project survey board in its consideration of the problem of admitting extra lands, according to a statement by Chairman Frank W. Hanna yesterday, at the opening session. "We will know there is water enough, and then admit lands to it," he said.

With the members, W. A. Farish and Frank Asplund, Mr. Hanna got started yesterday on some of the voluminous figures that must be dug into before tabulation can be made of supply and demand. Hanna had just arrived from his Iowa farm, where last week he was engaged in personally harrowing in a corn crop, and he displayed a healthy tan. But with him, it was easy to get down to cases. Farish, too, has been engaged in other lines of work since leaving here. He has built a bit of pavement, mined some gold and engineered around Los Angeles, a few Asplund is the mathematician of the board, and whenever anybody springs a bunch of arithmetic, he pulls out a slide rule and checks up the computation.

There are three considerations actuating the board in its work to extend the project boundaries, and only one of them is a positively known factor. The reservoir is full, and has been, to all intents and purposes for two years. The water plane in the valley has risen, although how much is not strictly known. The matter on which the majority of the preliminary computation must be made, relates to the duty of water, since the original survey board report went into effect. It must be made clear that the actual duty of water has been raised, and it is intimated that this is to be shown.

No member of the board knows just how long the present task will last, but Hanna says this job will be considerably lighter than the first one, in which the entire project had to be worked over and classified before even the start for a report could be made.

HARVEY HOUSES WILL USE DAM PICTURES

Phoenix will be advertised by means of Roosevelt dam photographs in one dozen Harvey houses along the Santa Fe main line. This was the result of an exchange of letters between the Chamber of Commerce and Santa Fe railway officials, culminating yesterday in the announcement that twelve big prints of the dam would be used in as many hotels.

The movement is in line with the general publicity campaign of the Chamber of Commerce, involving the distribution of thousands of high class art prints of the dam.

TO DEFEND COUNTRY

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 17.—Both the United Confederate Veterans and the Sons of Veterans adopted resolutions at their meetings here today pledging unconditional support to the government of the United States should it become necessary for defense of the country. The resolutions adopted by the Sons of Veterans after calling attention to international relations and declaring that in President Wilson, a son of the south, the nation had a worthy leader, said that "should our country call for the sons of Confederate soldiers we would respond with life, fortune and sacred honor."

AMUSEMENTS

The Cycle of Fate at Lion Today
A picture full of thrilling situations and a plot that will hold the attention during every one of the five reels, is "The Cycle of Fate," with that winsome star, Bessie Eyton, and the popular actor Wheeler Oatman in the leading roles. "The Cycle of Fate" tells a story of twins, a boy and a girl who separate, only to be brought together by an unexpected turn of fate. It is a good story of life as it is with scenes laid in a big city. It will be shown at the Lion Theater for the last time today, supplanting with "The Strange Case of Mary Page," making a seven reel show. Tomorrow the Lion will present "The Battle Cry of Peace," a great nine part feature that is really wonderful. Every American citizen should see it. Six shows daily will be given, starting at 10 a. m.

Amuzu
A good five reel drama of New York's inside life where the rounder gets up as the toiler goes to bed and where chorus girls are bought and paid for like so many bunches of lettuce. It shows the night life in the circles of the rich and near rich. With it will be shown a good comedy and the whole will be further enhanced with a weekly. The title of the picture is "The Sphinx." It was due several days ago but was substituted with a picture of the hour which arrived ahead of it.

Kitty Gordon at Lamara
The World Film Corporation struck an unexpected snag when it came time to photograph the dazzling Kitty Gordon's glittering, gorgeous ballet in the photodrama, especially written for her screen debut, and which is based upon E. Phillips' famous novel and play, "As in a Looking Glass." The first scene the director elected to

The hotter the day—the better the taste

take was one at a supposed "drawing-room" at a Washington embassy. Naturally there was quite an acreage of the Gordon back on view in this scene where evening gowns were essential. Miss Gordon's gown began late and ended early.

Now Miss Gordon has to dull the gleam of that famous back and those celebrated shoulders with whole shakerfuls of yellowish powder and the camera clicks right merrily with its undazzled eye on the dulled surfaces.

Kitty Gordon, back and all will be at the Lamara today.

Francis X. Bushman at Columbia

The Metro people must have become converts to the preparedness theory for the "Wall Between," which they served on the screen of the Columbia has more argument for getting ready and developing real, not typewritten soldiers than all the articles written in the past two months. Its a love story. A tale of a young fellow who has been a high flyer who joins the army, who learns that his former social position counts nothing when he is thrown up against the son of a congressman who has a commission. But the ex-rounder is a man and the son of the congressman is not. Furthermore, the club man is a born soldier, and when Uncle Sam sends his boys down to some Central American country, they don't use Mexico but the inference is obvious, this private makes some name for himself and the paper toy lieutenant is asked to resign. It's an American story; has lots of the give-us-your-applause in it but Bushman is a manly and convincing hero and the battle scenes with the "spigotties" and the cowardice of the sissie lieutenant make plenty to please all. Beverly Bayne of course is seen as the sweetheart of the private and she is at home in a good part. One cannot miss if one is looking for real live American sentiment, and it gives the outsider a good chance to compare the real American and the hot house brand of fighter. "The Wall Between" will be decidedly do. The Columbia stood them up for a pair of shows last night. Sidney Drew and his wife in a honky-tonk stunt are clever and took lots of laughs. It's on again tonight.

Anna Held at Arizona
After a long reign as one of the world's greatest stars of the stage, the celebrated Anna Held has at last gone into motion pictures, and will be presented for the first time upon the screen by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company on the Paramount program in "Madame La Presidente."

Aside from the $25,000 Oliver Morosco is reported to have paid Miss
